Transplantation of human cells, tissues or organs is the best – and often the only – way to save lives for people with serious or life-threatening diseases and injuries.

Transplantation involves replacing non-functional cells, tissues or organs with healthy counterparts that are obtained from another individual through voluntary donation during their lifetime or after their death. Access to transplantation varies a lot between countries, as does the safety, quality, efficacy of donation and transplantation of human cells, tissues and organs. Growth and development of transplantation worldwide is highly unequal and faces many challenges including:
