“RECENT ADVANCES IN THE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL MANAGEMENT OF CHRONIC PEPTIC ULCER”

On

28TH APRIL 2026
09:30 AM onwards

Venue: Seminar Hall II
Department of General Surgery.

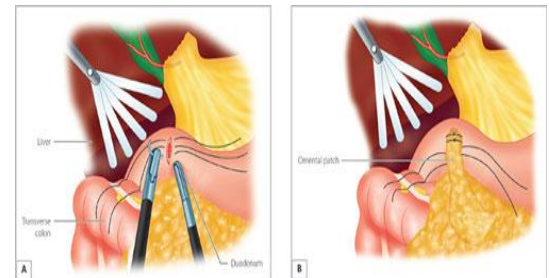

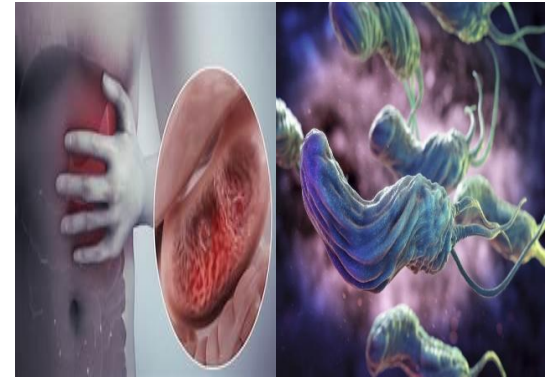

Organized by

Dept. of General Surgery
SDUMC, KOLAR

Overview

Recent advances in chronic peptic ulcer management focus on superior acid suppression with potassium-competitive acid blockers (P-CABs) like vonoprazan, and novel endoscopic hemostatic techniques (e.g., powders, clips) to manage bleeding. Enhanced diagnostics target antibiotic-resistant H. pylori, while natural compounds are being explored for gastroprotection.

Surgical management of chronic peptic ulcer disease (PUD) has shifted away from elective acid-reducing surgeries towards minimal invasive techniques focused on managing severe acute complications such as perforation and refractory bleeding. While medical therapy has rendered elective surgery rare, innovations in laparoscopic, endoscopic, and robotic-assisted techniques have improved outcomes for emergency interventions
