Safe and effective patient handling and transfer is a fundamental skill for all healthcare professionals, especially physiotherapists, nurses, and rehabilitation specialists. Improper transfer techniques can lead to injuries not only for patients but also for healthcare providers. Recognizing the critical importance of these skills in clinical practice, this Value-Added Course (VAC) titled "Patient Transfer Skills" was designed to equip students with practical knowledge and hands-on experience in various patient transfer techniques. The course, spanning 30 hours, provided comprehensive training in manual and assisted transfer methods, body mechanics, ergonomics, use of assistive devices, patient communication, and safety considerations. Delivered through interactive lectures, demonstrations, and supervised practical sessions, the course aimed to enhance the clinical readiness and confidence of participants in handling real-world patient mobility scenarios. By integrating theoretical insights with practical application, this VAC bridges the gap between classroom learning and bedside care, contributing to the development of competent, safe, and empathetic healthcare professionals.
